

“Take Me With You”

One of the most difficult times of our journeys to East Africa is when the time comes to leave. Not only have we become bonded with our new found brothers and sisters, but the children have also become very attached to us. They clamor about us, hugging us tightly and pleading, “Please take me with you.”

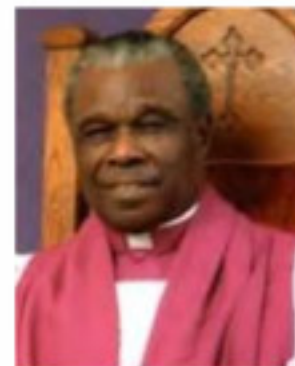

These moments especially deepen our commitment to the great charge that God has given us. We cannot be a mystical visitor that shows up periodically, bearing gifts: we must be consistent in our presence through spreading the life changing gospel of Jesus Christ, and through providing life resources and leadership training. These elements will usher in an unprecedented new era of self-perpetuating spiritual and natural growth and prosperity for our East African brothers and sisters.
